Recorder's Office to Conduct Public Records Research Workshops

The Clark County Recorder's Office will be conducting Public Records Research Workshops to assist citizens in increasing their awareness of documents that may have been recorded against them.

These workshops, taught by Recorder's Office managers, will empower citizens to monitor, identify and address any actions that may negatively affect a homeowner's property. The information may help avoid serious problems in the future.

The Clark County Recorder's Office is committed to helping homeowners become more aware by taking a proactive role in identifying ways to protect their property. Concerned citizens may participate in one of the scheduled Public Records Research Workshops.

In 2008, the Clark County Commission commended the Recorder's Office for playing a key role in a mortgage fraud investigation that resulted in a conviction, as well as fines and restitution totaling $130,000. Increased awareness among local residents will help fight fraud more effectively.
